

Barnes Road changes ongoing

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

Construction continues on a $3.8 million major realignment and widening of Barnes Road in Williamstown.

Contractors are in the process of building a detour road so that work can continue on the new roadway, said Nancy Wood, Kentucky Transportation Cabinet District 6 public information officer.

The one-mile section will go from approximately the east side of the Interstate 75 interchange to the rail road tracks at Arnie Risen Blvd.

The roadway will have three-lanes that include a continuous center turning lane, improved shoulders, curb and gutter. Barrett Paving Materials, Inc., of Cincinnati, OH was awarded the contract.

“This road widening project will improve the alignment along this growing section of highway,” Rob Hans, Chief District Engineer for District 6, said when the project began in late 2011.

Corinth passes budget

By Jamie Baker-Nantz
Editor

When there’s not a lot of money in a budget, there’s not much to be done, says Corinth Mayor Billy Hill.

“We haven’t had any new sources of income, so our budget is about the same as last year,” Hill said. “We continue to tread water.”

Hill said the city saw a decrease in insurance taxes and he believes that’s a result of a stalled economy and people choosing to drop insurance coverage.

“You also don’t see as many people watering their lawns as you used to,” he said.

Corinth, which is Grant County’s smallest city with a population of 200, has a total annual budget of $63,500.

Yard sale to benefit Grant County Animal Shelter

By Bryan Marshall
Staff Writer

The Grant County Friends of the Shelter will hold a fundraiser yard sale on Saturday, July 28 to benefit the Grant County Animal Shelter.

The yard sale will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Grant County Tourism and Chamber of Commerce Center at 1350 N Main St. in Williamstown.

The rain date for the event will be Aug. 4.

The Grant County Friends of the Shelter is an all-volunteer non-profit organization that supports and assists the shelter in helping homeless pets in the county.

“We try to help make the pets stay at the shelter as comfortable as possible,” said Yvonne Stimer, board member of the Grant County Friends of the Shelter and a shelter volunteer.

The Friends of the Shelter’s duties include: helping with adoption events, taking pictures of pets available for adoption, funding emergency veterinary care and a trap, neuter, release program to provide spay and neutering of feral (stray) cats.

The organization also has raised money to provide outdoor kennel runs for shelter dogs and an outdoor cat enclosure.

“The dogs can now leave the indoor kennels and go outside to play and get fresh air,” Stimer said. “Kittens do not have to stay in a cage. They too can have fresh air and sunshine. People looking to adopt can go inside the enclosure and interact with the cats and kittens. We also raise money for new kennel beds.

GRANT COUNTY'S HEALTHY HEROES

Name: Steven Courtney of Dry Ridge

What motivated you to live a healthier lifestyle? I wanted to feel better.

How have you changed your lifestyle in order to be healthier? I work out five days a week, take vitamins and eat healthy.

What are your favorite fitness activities? I love trying to do harder core work outs and just things that are really hard.

What suggestions do you have for someone who wants to be healthier-how can they best get started? Change their diet, eating healthy is the biggest thing that will change how you feel.

How do you stay motivated? I try to think long-term. Delayed gratification is healthier.

What is your favorite food? Cheese burgers, but I can't eat them anymore.

How do you reward yourself? Being healthy and seeing improvements are my reward.

Tell one thing about yourself that might surprise your friends and family if they knew? I don't keep much from my friends and family but I don't think people expected me to stick with it the way that I have. But everyone has been amazed and supportive of what I have done.

Grant County Circuit Clerk participates in clerks college

Grant County Circuit Court Clerk Shirley Wilson participated in the 2012 Kentucky Association of Circuit Court Clerks Summer College that took place June 12-13 in Frankfort. The KACCC hosted the college and the Kentucky Association of Counties sponsored the event. The college included 6.25 hours of continuing education credit for the circuit clerks.

"The college was an opportunity for circuit clerks to get fresh insights about the day-to-day operations of their offices," said Loretta Crady, Hardin County circuit court clerk and newly elected president of the KACCC. "We also discussed how some upcoming distance learning can provide continuing education for us without all the travel and how the circuit clerks' new SharePoint site will make it easier to share information and ideas. Using technology means we can do more with less in spite of ongoing budget reductions."

Circuit court clerks and Administrative Office of the Courts personnel served as presenters for the college, which included sessions on handling jury trials and domestic violence reports, records management, accounts receivable and personnel matters. The circuit clerks also received updates on driver licensing, the Judicial Branch budget, legislation and the Trust for Life program. The KACCC sponsors Trust for Life to promote organ and tissue donation through driver licensing and the Kentucky Organ Donor registry.

Circuit court clerks are responsible for managing the records of Kentucky's Circuit and District courts. Circuit clerks are elected officials from all 120 counties and serve a six-year term. They provide professional recordkeeping, receive money due the courts, pay money to required parties and to the state, record legal documents, provide legal materials, maintain the jury system, administer oaths, handle affidavits and issue driver licenses and non-driver ID cards.

Grant County News editor receives LCN writing award

The Grant County News captured an award for news writing from its parent company, Landmark Community Newspapers LLC annual awards contest.

Jamie Baker-Nantz, editor of the Grant County News, received a second place award for news writing. Her entry consisted of three stories – an Easter tornado in 2011, a Dry Ridge pastor who was charged for pornography and a raid at the former El-Amin Pain Clinic in Dry Ridge.

The judge's said "I was most impressed by the thoroughness of Baker-Nantz's reporting. With her coverage of two tornadoes touching down in the area, she included a story on whether a weather warning did what it should. With her story about the pastor arrested for posting and soliciting child pornography, she went after the drama of the investigation and subsequent arrest in one story.

In another, she wrote about the heartbreak of the church where he was pastor.

There are also some nice turns of phrase in her stories. One example: "Neighbors hugged police officers and clapped when federal agents raided El-Amin pain management clinic last week" – the lead on a story about an alleged "pill mill" getting shut down.

The Grant County News competed against other weeklies in the Landmark company.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Don't torture yourself...that's my job

While my husband Bud and I were attempting to find something decent to watch on television the other night – and it's a desert out there, I tell ya – I started thinking that it has been some years since I compiled a list of my favorite movie quotes. Although there are more interesting things to write about-I didn't.

It is sad to say that there are few quotes worth adding since the last time I updated my list. And it's sad that two of my favorite quotes include the word "taters."

So here goes:

- It's a fool that looks for logic in the chambers of the human heart. (Ulysses Everett McGill, O Brother Where Art Thou)

- It's true, you are a good woman. Then again you may be the antichrist. (Doc Holliday, Tombstone)

- I'm a foolish old man whose been drawn into a wild goose chase by a harpie in trousers and a nincompoop. (Rooster Cogburn, True Grit)

- Don't torture yourself Gomez. That's my job. (Morticia Addams, The Addams Family)

- A census taker once tried to test me. I ate his liver with some fava beans and nice Chianti. (Hannibal Lector, The Silence of the Lambs)

- To have memories of those you have loved and lost is perhaps harder that to have no memories at all. (Van Helsing, Van Helsing)

- Pay no attention to that man behind that curtain. (The Wizard of Oz, The Wizard of Oz)

- Sam: What we need is a few good taters.

Gollum: What's taters, precious? What's taters eh?

Sam: Po-tay-toes! Boil 'em, mash'em, stick'em in a stew...(The Lord of the Rings)

- You, my friend, are a victim of disorganized thinking. You are under the unfortunate impression that just because you run away you have no courage; you're confusing courage with wisdom. (The Wizard, The Wizard of Oz)

- Badges? We ain't got no badges! I don't have to show you any stinkin' badges! (Gold Hat, The Treasure of the Sierra Madre)

- What we've got here is failure to communicate. (Captain, Cool Hand Luke)

- I ain't got time to bleed. (Blain- Jesse Ventura, Predator)

-Vaughan Cunningham: You always seem to be deep in thought. Tell me, what are you thinking right now?

Karl: I was thinkin' I was gonna take me some of these taters home with me. (Sling Blade)

- Nonsense, I have not yet begun to defile myself. (Doc Holliday, Tombstone)

- That's enough! When you didn't know what you were talkin' about You really had somethin'! (Moe to Curly in "Booby Dupes")

- What we do in life echoes in eternity. (Maximus Gladiator)

- Pete: I've always wondered, what's the devil look like?

Ulysses Everitt McGill:

Well, there are all manners of lesser imps and demons, Pete, but the great Satan himself is red and scaly with a bifurcated tail and he carries a hay fork.

Tommy Johnson: Oh, no. No, sir. He's white, white as you folks, with empty eyes and a big hollow voice. He likes to travel around with a mean old hound. That's right. (O Brother Where Art Thou)

- An evil petting zoo? (Dr. Evil, Austin Powers, International Man of Mystery)

- Face it girls, I'm older and have more insurance. (Evelyn Couch, Fried Green Tomatoes)

- The way I figure, there's really not too much future with a sawed-off runt like you. (The Man with No Name, the Good, the Bad and the Ugly)

- Them sirens did this to

Pete. They loved him up and turned him into a horny toad. (Delmar O' Donnell, O Brother Where Art Thou)

- You don't have what they call "the social skills." That's why you never have any friends, 'cept for your mama." (Mama Boucher, The Water Boy)

- I can see! (runs into tree) Nope, I was wrong. (Blinkin', Robin Hood: Men in Tights)

- Want me to show you a little trick, take your mind off that arm? (Major Payne, Major Payne)

- If you fine, fancy gentlemen don't wanta do nothin about it, then you're all yellow stinkin' cowards. (Mayella, To Kill a Mockingbird)

- Woodrow Call (after burying Gus by the stream in Texas): Well, Gus; there you go. I guess this will teach me to be more careful about what I promise people in the future. (Lonesome Dove)

- Only a fool fights in a burning house. (Klingon Commander Kang, Star Trek)

- The old dreams were good dreams; they didn't work out, but glad I had them. (Robert Kincaid, Bridges of Madison County)

- Now, go away or I shall taunt you a second time. (French Soldier, The Search for the Holy Grail)

A WORD FROM OUR READERS . . .

Faster-Easier-Safer Voting Machines

Which method will you use to vote this fall? Would you prefer a paper ballot or an electronic one? In June 2009 the Grant County Board of Elections purchased eScan voting machines from Harp Enterprises, Inc. in Lexington. Because the several hundred thousand dollars spent for these voting machines provided a paper ballot trail, funding was provided by the Federal Government to assist states with the transition to a more transparent voting system.

What is different about the newest eScan machine? Oddly enough, we are somewhat returning to the simple days when we made a mark by the candidate of our choice on a paper ballot. The voter makes a mark by the name of their preferred candidate behind a privacy screen. Then the voter places their ballot into the eScan scanning machine, the ballot slides into a scanning tray and is counted; the process takes just a few seconds.

The ballot drops into a locked and sealed voting ballot box. What a simple, straight forward, quick process. The beauty of the system is, if election officials ever need to recount the eScan votes cast, these paper ballots are clearly marked and available for a recount. Paper ballots ensure each voter knows their vote counts and is counted as intended.

We also still have the older eSlate voting machines used in our county for about ten years. These are primarily for visually impaired voters, as they have headphones attached. To use it, you turn a dial four times to enter your assigned "voting number," and then again turn the dial multiple times to find and indicate each of the candidates you want to cast a vote for. This eSlate process takes about a minute versus one or two seconds for the eScan.

The eSlate does NOT have a paper ballot backup. Election officials cannot conduct a one by one recount of eSlate votes. Although the primary incentive for purchasing the eScans was to provide clear paper backup for ballots should a recount ever be required, they are easier to use and they are faster. Therefore, the Board of Elections agreed to promote the use of the eScan, recognizing some voters would feel comfortable continuing to use the eSlate.

Knowing this history, you can imagine my surprise in the May election worker"schooling" for Grant County conducted by Megan Harp of Harp Enterprises, Inc. when she told the election workers we were to "PUSH" the use of the eSlate voting machines in this election. I immediately questioned Harp briefly during the training and later afterwards, why we would "push use of the eSlate?" Her response was "It is the direction Frankfort wants to take".

In subsequent correspondence with our county Judge Executive and County Clerk, and in a June meeting with the Board of Elections confirmed no one in Frankfort is "pushing" the use of the eSlate, but rather leaves the decision up to the county. Because the eScan has a paper backup, is faster and is easier to use, the board reaffirmed the desire to encourage the use of the eScan, with voters having the ability to use the eSlate if necessary or desired.

I remember clearly how fortunate we were to be able to recount the paper ballots cast in this county during the 2010 election. Election officials from each party, the candidate's attorneys, and even a reporter from this newspaper stood by as one by one each paper ballot was recounted to validate a close election here in Grant County. Our procedures withstood scrutiny.

Our paper ballot recount was transparent. I plan to attend future Board of Election meetings to assure clarity about why we procured the eScan voting machines. They are faster, easier to use and provide a paper backup which gives voters more assurance that every vote is counted as intended. Overall, it provides more transparency to our voting process. For voters to have confidence in our election system, the election process must be transparent. When I cast my vote this fall, I will use the eScan with a paper ballot backup. What's your choice?

DOWN AND DIRTY

Small ears may mean poor pollination

I gave up growing corn a long time ago; figured others can grow it better than me so why take up the space. I drive by Gallrein’s in Bagdad, Kentucky twice a week and their “Sweet Corn” sign has been hung so there are no worries, they have the best corn this side of the Mississippi. The corn is looking good in some areas of my county and not so in others. The 100 degree heat certainly did not help with good pollination and ear development but there are other things that can cause small stalks, small ears, poor kernel development and other corn ailments...does this sound like your corn crop this year? Several factors may be at work depending on where you live and the amount of rainfall you have received. Drought at the wrong time can stunt your corn crop; cold damage can stunt corn (if you put your crop out early you could see a little stunting from a late spring cold snap) and poor drainage and poor soil fertility, especially nitrogen, can stunt the crop as well.

Good soil, adequate nutrients

Corn needs what most other summer crops need: good soil and drainage, adequate nutrients and temperatures above 60 degrees for germination and growth. Corn is actually a heavy feeder so healthy soil with some side dressing is a good idea to maximize the quality of harvest. Add composted manure when preparing the planting block and then follow up with a balanced fertilizer or additional compost every two weeks or so thereafter.

Water needs are not excessive but irrigation (if it doesn’t come naturally) when the stalks begin to flower will promote larger ear development. The rest relies on cross pollination. Corn flowers and begins to shed its pollen several days before the silks actually emerge. It is rare for the pollen of the same plant to actually fertilize itself; it usually floats to other plants, travels down the tube of the silk where it finally reaches the female flower.

Jeneen WICHE
Weekend Gardener

Sweet corn for eating is one of those crops best grown en masse in the field. Good cross pollination, often facilitated by a breeze, needs to occur between different corn plants; each silk that comes from the top corresponds directly to a kernel inside. If the silk isn’t pollinated then the corresponding kernel does not develop...pretty darn cool, really. The problem with backyard garden corn is that people often just plant a few rows out which usually results in poor pollination because when the breeze hits it just blows the pollen over the single neighboring row and it pollinates nothing. In order to improve cross pollination and ensure a full ear of corn plant large blocks of corn instead of a few long rows.

Detering earworms

The most common pest of corn is the corn earworm (and maybe a hungry bunch of raccoons!) The adult moth of the earworm lays her eggs on the silks of corn. Once the eggs hatch they begin feeding on the silks, working their way down into the husk where the real prize awaits, the developing kernels of corn. Commercial growers often use insecticides, but for the home gardener this is not necessary because there is generally only one earworm per ear (they eat each other if there is more than one). One organic approach to deterring corn earworms is dropping a small amount of vegetable oil in the middle of the silks as they begin to form. I’ve not tried it but it is worth a shot of you have the problem. Corn is ready to harvest when the silks dry and turn brown to black in color.

Sweet corn undoubtedly has high sugar content but it is best if it is eaten within 12 hours of harvest because as soon as it is picked the sugar in the corn begins to slowly turn to starch. If you are not ready to eat your harvest keep it cool in the refrigerator or process it for freezing or canning. Many of the newer hybrids stay sweeter longer, however.

Dog Days of Summer

The summer heat has reminded me of an important part of the word of God. The hot summer days, the need for rain and the seeming never ending thirst causes us to want one thing.....to be refreshed.

The Gospel of John, chapter 4, the story of the woman at the well is recorded. In this story a lady is coming to get water at the well for her and her family. It was the hottest part of the day and she was met by Jesus. Jesus intentionally went to her to minister to her and show her the only thing that would quench her thirst.

Jesus offered her water that would quench her thirst forever. Of course she was interested in water that would quench her thirst. The water that was described by Jesus was the Living Water. The interesting fact is that Jesus was not offering her H2O, he was offering her himself.

Pastor's Corner

Jesus Christ, died on a cross, overcame death, hell and the grave and offers us eternal life and victory. He offers himself, the Savior of the world, the Son of God, offers himself to you and to me. The question is will we take the Living Water or will we continue to attempt to quench our thirst in other places?

So in the long hot days going forward when you reach for an energy drink, sports drink, soda or water, remember that the only water that will change your life is the Living Water, Jesus Christ.

CHURCH NOTES

Corinth Christian

• Ever notice when you have lost something, you always find it in the last place you look? Sometimes we experience this when we look for joy. During all situations, both good and bad, we are to rejoice. The joy of a Christian is not based on agreeable circumstances, instead it is based on their relationship with God. Christians will face trouble in the world but should rejoice in the trials they face because they know God is using those situations to improve their character. Jesus Christ knew the joy of God on many occasions. He knew when His Father was pleased and spent time with Him to celebrate the joy. Spend time on a daily basis with your Heavenly Father, and experience joy.

New grooming shop opens in Crittenden

By Jamie Baker-Nantz

When Michele Pope realized she would have to leave her new Shitzu puppy with a dog groomer, she decided she should just learn to do it herself.

So, Pope signed up for grooming classes in Lexington.

Her family wasn't sure what to make of her new found career choice.

"I always told my mom that I didn't know what I wanted to be when I grew up and grooming seemed like the perfect fit for a career working with animals," Pope said.

Pope spent 10 years as a groomer at Middendorf Animal Hospital, but she had her sights set on her own business.

On July 1, she opened Bad To The Bone Grooming Salon at Dalton Plaza in Crittenden.

"I love animals," she said, which is evidenced by her animal brood at home that includes a Rottweiler, Boston Terrier, Japanese Chin, two (rescued) cats and the Shitzu.

Bad To The Bone isn't just for canines, Pope also provides grooming and trimming services for cats.

She actually believes cats are harder to groom.

"I'm kind of terrified of cats anyway," she said with a laugh. "But we groom them."

She said the most scared she's ever been is when a feline she was grooming decided it didn't want to be groomed.

"The cat went off. It was hissing and mad. I yelled for my helper to come and the cat grabbed him by the wrist. That was the most scared I've been because they can hurt you," she said.

Pope has been bitten, has needed stitches and even been taken to the emergency room, but she said those things just come with being a groomer.

She chose to open a shop in Crittenden because she felt it was close to her Williamstown home and still close enough to the client base she built in Northern Kentucky.

"Crittenden made sense for me. This is a happy medium and I hope that people realize Crittenden isn't the edge of the world," she said.

Bad To The Bone also offers grooming and pet supplies.

When Pope finds herself too busy, she gets help from Katie Beecraft as well as her husband, Mark and sons, Christopher and Michael. Her father, Donald Julian, helped her get the shop ready to open.

A "wipe your paws" sign greets customers when they enter and it's hard not to miss, the purple paw prints that adorn the shop's front door and the purple walls inside. There's even a pot of purple flowers.

"Yes, I do like purple," she said.

When not working, Pope enjoys riding her motorcycle and gardening.

"My job identifies me. I guess you could say I am my job. I like to think of myself as a canine beautification specialist and I'm most happy when I'm doing just that."

Work continues on Barnes Road in Williamstown with an expected completion of summer 2013.

BARNES ROAD

“This in turn will improve safety and provide better access to St. Elizabeth Hospital.”

The project has an anticipated completion date of summer 2013.

Williamstown Mayor Rick Skinner said he is pleased the project is becoming a reality.

With an improved Barnes Road, Skinner anticipates increased interest by businesses coming to Grant County.

“As far as developments, I think that’s what was holding everything back,” he said. “People were just waiting to see how the road would turn out. It is going to coincide probably with the groundbreaking of the Ark. People are just sitting on the sidelines waiting to see if the Ark’s coming in. That’s prime development land for restaurants and motels and hotels. I think it will all come together.”

Other than a few complaints about traffic moving too fast through the construction zone, Wood said everything has been smooth.

As construction continues, only short term lane closures are expected, lasting for a day or less at a time, said Wood.

With thousands visiting the Grant County Public Library monthly, the nearby construction has not impacted patrons in a great way so far, said Susan Nimersheim, director of the library.

“Early on, some library users expressed concern, but we told them what we were told by the state and the construction company that we would always retain access throughout the project,” she said. “We did have to close a few hours during one phase, but we were able to get the word out to the various outlets how this would have an effect on our hours. The construction crew has been excellent to work with and have kept us informed.”

Through June, 10,804 patrons came through the library’s doors and the circulation of materials was 13, 931.

The numbers are a slight decrease from last year, but Nimersheim said it is difficult to say if the construction played a part or it is attributed to a 62-percent increase of patrons downloading items online through Kentucky Libraries

Unbound.

However, the library has made some changes in the past year that have alleviated some of the traffic in and out of its parking lot.

This year, the library is able to provide children, teens and adults the ability to sign up and keep track of their reading online instead of in person during the annual Summer Reading Program.

“This has been met with a wonderful response,” Nimersheim said. “There are so many people who would like to participate, but may have issues with transportation to get to our location. They are able to be a part of the program now.”

The library also has been promoting its Outreach Services more throughout the county in which Ann Kimble will deliver materials to persons who are unable to physically get to the library, as well as to nursing homes in the county.

The Library Express also offers two locations in Corinth and Crittenden where library card holders may have items delivered to a drop box for anytime pick up.

Once construction on Barnes Road is complete, the library will be placing a new sign in the front of its building.

The LED sign will provide brief information concerning hours, closings, program offerings and other information.

Although Nimersheim believes the completed road will be wonderful overall because it will be straighter, wider and look better, she does have concerns.

“One concern I do have when the project is completed is the safety of people walking to the library,” she said. “Currently, we have both children and adults who walk to the library from the school and from Williamstown. As I understand it, the side where the library and DaVita is will have no sidewalks available. I hope that this is addressed in the near future.”

“I was very disappointed when the state removed our direct access and moved it to a vacant lot of a largely empty retail area, since the public library is a destination point and is quite busy for most of each day of the week,” Nimersheim said. “When it is finished, we will be the only entity on the access road. I am still unclear how that will impact us.”

Anyone interested in volunteering to help at the shelter or to donate to the fundraiser yard sale, can call Marsha Chaney, director, at the shelter at 859-824-9403.

“To see a pet benefit by your help assisting the shelter is truly rewarding,” Stimer said. “To know you are helping to save a life is the best part of volunteering.”

Police investigate burglary at Bluegrass Tobacco

Williamstown Police are investigating a July 8 burglary at Bluegrass Tobacco.

The store, located at 1214C North Main St. in Williamstown, was allegedly broken into after two men through rocks through the glass front door, according to police.

The suspects are described as white males about 5 feet 8 inches to 6 feet tall.

The first suspect, who was wearing a green NASCAR shirt, is believed to have a medium build with possible facial hair and possible tattoo
